Young Innovators’ Forum

An exclusive evening discovering the importance of scientist/grower relationships, what’s taking place in plant growth facilities & the practical applications, and how you can work with and inform the research taking place.

Always wanted to see a larger part of the agricultural production chain? If you’re a plant scientist or a young farmer, join us for an informal evening get-together. Come along to this meeting to discover more about what actually takes place in the labs, and how it affects what’s growing out in the fields. We’ll be taking a look round the Botanic Gardens, the greenhouses, and the plant growth facilities.

To encourage you further, we’ll also be providing pizza!
